Kennesaw, GA – Packard Inc., a Georgia-based HVACR master distributor, announces it will open a 42,000 square foot distribution center on September 1 in Indiana.

The new warehouse will stock inventory from Packard's 10,000+ product list, provide shorter lead times and help meet the heavy stock-order demands from their wholesale customers within the Midwest region. The distribution center will also feature a customer pick-up area, providing wholesalers in or around the metro Indianapolis area an option to pick-up their order.

The Packard Indianapolis Distribution Center is located at 2570 North Shadeland Avenue, Suite 103, Indianapolis, Indiana, 46219. Hours of operation will be Monday-Friday 7:30am-5:00pm.

"Our team is very excited about this new opportunity. Packard's expansion into the Midwest reflects the overall commitment to our customers and their needs. It will carry Packard one step closer to our goal of becoming the preferred Master Distributor of choice for HVACR motors, parts and accessories." said Dan Lauterhahn, V.P. of Sales and Marketing for Packard.
